FRANCHISE HOLDS GOOD.

Actual Work Begun Yesterday By Jno. H. Bell Jr.

NINE MONTHS TO FINISH

Work Will Be Pushed To Completion Early In The Spring.

Wright Southgate, a Civil Engineer from Nashville, arrived in the city Thursday night and yesterday began the work of surveying the route for the street railway, under the franchise sold three months ago to John H. Bell, Jr.

Under the franchise it was necessary to begin work by the 16th, which is to-day, and the start was made none too soon.

Mr. Bell has encountered some unexpected obstacles, the most serious being the illness of the engineer of the Chicago capitalists who are expected to finance the project. He was to arrive a week ago, but his continued illness made it necessary to secure the services of a substitute.

Mr. Bell is authorized to go ahead with the survey and such other work as can be done during the winter and in the spring the work will be put through to completion by the date named in the franchise. Five miles of road must be done by Sept. 16th, one year from the time the franchise was granted.

The people are very much interested in the projected railway system and the announcement that the conditions of the grant are being complied with will be received with much pleasure.

An invitation has been extended by the citizens of Cincinnati for the Northern Baptist Societies to meet in that city on the same date as the Chattanooga meeting. It is likely that the delegates to the Cincinnati meeting will go to Chattanooga and visit the Baptists there in session.--Courier Journal.

FELIX G. EWING WAS THERE.

Congressmen Stanley and Gaines Also Present at Meeting.

ALL MADE SPEECHES.

System That Has Revolutionized Western Tobacco Business Explained.

Felix G. Ewing, president of the Dark Tobacco-District Growers' Protective Association of Kentucky and Tennessee, was in attendance at a meeting of the State Executive Committee of the Dark Tobacco Growers' Association of Virginia, at Farmville, Tuesday, and delivered an address at night.

Congressmen A. O. Stanley, of this district, and John Wesley Gaines, of Tennessee, were also at the meeting, which lasted two days, and delivered addresses Wednesday. Concerning the meeting, a telegram says: "These gentlemen fully explained the system that has revolutionized the Western tobacco business and protected the growers of tobacco from loss and ruin, and established fair prices for their tobacco."

"Arrangements to ineffect put the association's plans for controlling and marketing tobacco were made, and farmers can commence delivering their tobacco to the association's managers in the different localities on railroads, where the warehouses are located, and convenient for the farmers to reach by wagon."

"Banking arrangements for necessary advances will be made, and insurance provided, and tobacco will be held as a merchantable commodity in safe keeping condition till a reasonable and profitable price is obtained."

"By this means gluts will be avoided and low prices that prevail so often to the loss of tobacco growers will be prevented. Country warehouse towns will be built up and banking business greatly increased. More money will be put in circulation among the growers of tobacco and the usual prevailing hard times among these faithful toilers will be greatly improved, and this is to be accomplished by applying common sense business methods to this great industry and nobody takes question these methods but on all sides they meet with approval."

"The country is alive with the discussion of this work and farmers are falling in line and pledging their crops in every county in the dark tobacco section."

SKI RUNNING FASHIONABLE

This Sport of Scandinavian Origin Is Not Confined to Land of Birth, But Is Enjoyed Elsewhere.

Ski running is of Scandinavian origin, but has of late become quite a fashionable sport in other countries where natural facilities for its enjoyment exist.

The ski—pronounced shie—is, however, not confined to sport in the land of its nativity. It forms an essential factor in the lives of the people of Northern Europe—a necessary medium of travel where the country lies deep buried in snow so that walking is impossible. When a wolf is discovered the hardy peasants lose no time in arranging a ski hunt against the enemy. When the wolf leads they follow, and the sense of self preservation is so strong that, though members of the party drop from fatigue and exhaustion, the fittest hunters press on till the object of the hunt is attained.

On its native snows the ski was used as a means of getting through the day's work, and offered little inducement toward recreation and relaxation. But in the hilly countries of its adoption, where snow can be secured at lightning speed and the where one finds the keenest delight in the mere fact of traveling, ski running has taken the place of skating both as a national and a fashionable pastime.

The art of jumping on skis was first brought to prominent notice by the peasants of Telemarken, to whom running, leaping and gliding down hillsides on this picturesque footgear came as naturally as walking in boots does to us. By and by the Norwegian of the towns, wont to lead an indolent, enervating existence during the winter months, were attracted to the ski as a possible means of healthy amusement. To such purpose did they apply themselves in the new sport that they soon outdid their teachers, the country folk, in skill and daring.

Nor is indulgence in this invigorating pastime confined to the male portion of the community. Till recently it was not considered "correct" for ladies to ski, but habit has broken down the barrier of prejudice, and now skiing is the national sport of the Scandinavian women.

HER PA HAD AN AUTO, TOO

Therefore This Broken-Down Machine Owner Might Swear Before Little Girl on Curbside.

Gavin L. Payne, of Indianapolis, and his automobile, featured a story, which is related in the Indianapolis News. Mr. Payne started out to enjoy a spin not long ago. He got on smoothly until he got well to the outskirts of the city, rather far from a car line, then the auto, actuated by the motive that only autos know, decided that it had gone far enough. It stopped, and no pulling of levers or turning of cranks was sufficient to induce it to go farther.

After fruitless efforts to get it to change its mind Mr. Payne climbed from his seat and worked around the machine. Nothing seemed to do any good, and he was rapidly getting into a state that is relieved only by strong language. However, the struggles with the auto had attracted a good-sized company of children, and Mr. Payne did nothing worse than think. The children's interest grew as the autoist tinkered. Among them was a little girl with long, golden hair, and deep blue eyes. She crowded close to Mr. Payne as he worked.

Finally he became so exasperated that it seemed as if he really must say something. He turned to the little girl.

"I wish you would run away, little girl," he remarked.

"Why?" she asked, looking up at him.

Perhaps he wished to tell the truth; perhaps he only wished to see what the little girl would do. At any rate he said to her quite frankly: "I want to swear."

"Go right ahead," replied the child; "don't mind me. My father has an auto too."

The Time to Climb.

Climb the ladder of fame while you are young. Not only is your mind better and your avocations less then, but people are not so likely to make irritating remarks about your making a monkey of yourself.—Puck.

Why Buy McClure's?

McClure's Magazine is bought and read in homes not because it is a magazine, but because it is THE magazine. Who?

FIRST—THE PRICE. It costs but one dollar a year, or less than ten cents a number, for over thirteen hundred two-column pages of reading matter. This amounts in actual bulk to twenty-five books costing $2.50 where from a dollar to two dollars a volume.

SECOND—QUALITY. The reading matter is written by America's leading writers—the best short story writers on timely articles, the best writers of important series, such as Schurz's Reminiscences or Baker's Railroad articles.

THIRD—TIMELINESS. The reading matter in McClure's is not only good; it is not only entertaining, amusing, instructive and inspiring—it is also about the subjects in which you and all Americans are most interested at the time. No subjects in the next twelve months are going to be so important as the question of railroad rates and rebates and the question of life insurance. Both of these questions will be discussed by authorities in an impartial, careful, interesting way.

FOURTH—ITS CHARACTER. McClure's Magazine is not edited for children, but at the same time, there is never a line in it that any young girl might not read. Its advertising pages are as clean as its editorial pages.

The Weather.

For Kentucky: Saturday generally fair.

Secretary Bonaparte has officially reprimanded Midshipman Minor Meriwether, Jr., of Louisiana, for killing Cadet Branch.

Charles A. Peabody succeeds Richard A. McCurdy as president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. The salary is reduced from $150,000 to $50,000.

Miss Mary Waggoner, aged 23, and James Chaffin, aged 19, were married in Breckinridge county on the 13th. They had been sweethearts since the groom was a mere child.

The Iowa Supreme Court has decided that it is illegal to sell liquor into that state marked C. O. D., and the purchaser can recover money paid on such shipments.

The spirit of revolt in Russia's Baltic provinces is still sprig and a real revolution is threatened. The Czar is standing firmly behind Premier Witte, who is the Man of the Hour.

Bennett, of New York, has introduced a bill to cut down the representation of the Southern states 35 in the House on account of the disfranchisement of the negroes.

Corporal punishment, abolished in the Louisville public schools two years ago, has been re-established, though a good deal of red tape is necessary before the hickory finally reaches the hide.

President Roosevelt has appointed Gen. Wm. T. Martin, a Confederate General and a Democrat, postmaster at Natchez, Miss. He was not an applicant and there were several Republicans after the coveted position.

W. R. Hearst has lost his appeal to the supreme court of New York in the contest election case for mayor. The court by a vote of 5 to 2 decided that it cannot issue a mandamus for opening the ballot boxes.

The editor of this paper has long since learned to pursue the even tenor of his way, uninfluenced by either praise or criticism. It is, however, a source of pride that only two newspapers out of more than 150 in Kentucky have made unfriendly reference to his recent election to the office of mayor. If it has given the two exceptions any satisfaction to display their venom, they are welcome to it.

Capt. S. S. Brown, the millionaire coal operator, capitalist and turfman, died at Pittsburgh Monday. He retained consciousness almost to the last and asked only that his last moments be free from pain.

This year has 53 Sundays and the statement has been made that there will not be another such year for 110 years. This view is not accepted by C. D. Walker, of Adairville, Ky., who has calculated that there will be seventeen years during the present century with 53 Sundays, the next one in 1911. He says any year that begins on Sunday will contain 53 Sundays.

Gov. Chamberlain, of Oregon, has appointed John M. Gearin, Democrat, of Portland, to succeed Senator John H. Mitchell, Republican, as United States Senator. He will serve until March 4, 1907. Senator Gearin is 55 years old and a native of Oregon.

Would Soon Stock the Small Streams and Ponds With Game Fish.

Representative A. O. Stanley has introduced a bill in the House to establish a fish hatchery in Christian county and appropriating $25,000 for the erection of a suitable building in this city. These hatcheries are being located in all parts of the country and the government is devoting much attention to the development of the fish industry. The river at this place was stocked with young fish a few years ago and as a result there are some fine game fish in the stream.

With a hatchery located here it would not be long until all of the streams in Western Kentucky and private ponds as well could be stocked with game fish. The people here will thank Mr. Stanley for his interest in Hopkinsville and will be glad to see him get his bill through.

CRITICAL COMMENT

Concerning Mrs. Baker, Who Appears at Tabernacle Dec. 19-20.

From Prof. Geo. W. Kirchwey, Dean of the School of Law, Columbia University: I am not much of an admirer of public readings as a means of entertainment, but Mrs. Baker's interpretations rise above the level of mere entertainment and have a creative and transforming quality which I do not find in other work of the kind. They seem to me as admirable from the artistic standpoint as they are transforming and stimulating from the educational point of view.

From L. W. Johnson, Ph. D., University of Tennessee: Mrs. Baker's range of passion is so great that she was equally successful in portraying each selection—Browning, Kipling, Rostand, As I listened I realized the truth of Aristotle's dictum that the drama serves to purge our feelings through both laughter and tears. The secret of Mrs. Baker's power seems to lie in the fact that she is that rare combination, a woman of keen intellect with a warm sympathetic heart. Nor is her art less than she evidently aspires to use it for more ends.

From Miss Mary A. Blood, principal Columbia School of Oratory, Chicago, Ill.: Mrs. Baker's work is thoroughly artistic, powerful, scholarly—an example of true literary interpretation.

John Griffin's "King Richard."

The announcement of the coming engagement in this city of John Griffin on December 22 carries with it a great deal of interest to the best class of theatergoers and this interest is intensified by the fact that he will present Shakespeare's immortal tragedy "King Richard the Third." Mr. Griffin's presentation of it will have more adequate aid in the very excellent company he has elected, and the splendid deepfrosted scenic equipment furnished by his management. Many novel and thrilling electrical effects and chemical illusions have been added and the performance in its entirety will be the most important event in the season's theatrical history. Mr. Griffin is personally a most interesting character, a combination of the mental and physical. In appearance he suggests the peerless Edwin Foster and has the frame and strength of the champion pugilist, James J. Jeffries, while mentally he is one of the greatest students of the day of classic literature, and is fairly a crank on the works of the divine bard, Shakespeare.

SCHEME THAT FAILED

A LITTLE ADVENTURE IN A HOTEL.

"As prosperous as you see me now, two weeks ago I was on the hog," remarked Ferguson, as he paid the man in the white duck jacket and settled his scintillating scarf more securely in his grass-green necktie. "I had drifted into this city with a bad case in loose change in my pocket and a homeless reputation, as far as Sioux City was concerned. I calculated that before I got out of there the reputation would get spotted up some, because I was hustling Guff Nilson, who had agreed to meet me at the Boogie."

"I made a few cautious inquiries in a roundabout way concerning friend Guff and I was finally directed to a fine sandstone building, where I was informed he was staying. I didn't call on him. What was the use? I knew he wouldn't be at liberty to do me any good—not for 82 days, anyway."

"I had a good-looking valise with me that I found at Mission Valley, where we changed cars. It was a disappointment inside, as it contained nothing but four soiled collars, a briar pipe, two ham sandwiches, a razor and a hairbrush, but it was a dandy externally, and I thumped it down on the marble in front of the hotel clerk with all the confidence in the world."

"I'll be here for a few days," I said, "and I want a good, light room with a bath."

"I'll rent. He did ask me if I had any baggage checks, but I took no notice of him. As soon as I got to the room I threw the boy half a dollar and then went down and bought a 25-cent cigar at the cigar stand so that the clerk could see me."

"I went to bed at a tolerably early hour that night. I didn't want to do any cheap grafting if I could help it and I had to study up some plan of campaign. I finally concluded that I would do what I could with the hotel and hike right out at the early morning train. So about two o'clock I went softly into my room, feeling with my handy little pocket assortment of tools and stole into the room next to mine."

"That was all I stole. There came hair-raising yelps from the bed by the time I had got to the bureau, if you ever saw a swift snout get away in your life it was the one I made. I went like a tom-cat out of the pantry window, and I was in my own room safe and sound before the clerk had that cry died away on the startled air and I got into bed in a hurry."

Just at that instant as I heard the sound of hurrying feet a bright idea came to me. I grabbed my trousers, took out the $1.88 I had left and slung 'em out of the open window. Then I poked my head out of the door and joined the chorus of alarm up and down the corridor."

"What was it?" I asked the clerk, whom I recognized in his disguise of pyjamas and bathrobe. "Is a burglar?" "I'll bet it is, because if there wasn't one in my room ten minutes ago I'm badly fooled. I was three parts asleep when I woke up and I thought I might be mistaken, and dozed off again, but I can't find my trousers."

"Somebody else called him then and he excused himself and hurried off. I went back and turned on the electric light and got into bed. In about ten minutes there was a knock at the door and the clerk came in with a stout individual he introduced as the proprietor. They asked me to tell them what I knew about the recent disturbance, and I narrated how, hearing a slight noise, I woke up and thought I saw a dark figure flit across the room and out of the door, but hearing nothing more I imagined I had the nightmare and dozed off again till the yells in the next room lifted me out of bed in quest of my basement clothing, now missing."

"Mr. Proprietor was very sorry. No doubt there had been robbery, but the robber had escaped. The lady in the next room had given the alarm just in time to save herself from the loss of jewels valued at $2,000. Think of that! He would see me in the morning."

"I expect you to," I said, significantly. "I value those trousers of mine at $300. There was that much currency in them. I think it's up to you to make good."

"He went sadly away and I turned over on my pillow with a mind at ease. Of course, I knew he'd never dig up any three centuries on my say-so, but it was a cinch in my mind that I was fixed for a ticket to Chicago, reasonable expenses and new trousers. Under the circumstances that was good enough for me."

"Did I get 'em? Nil, not. He came up according to agreement, but he brought something with him. It was my trousers. They'd caught on the rail of the fire escape on the floor below and instead of being grabbed by some passer-by or falling into an alley ash can, they had been waving there gracefully in the morning breeze, attracting the undivided attention of close on a thousand people in a bunch."

"Stranger!" I said. "He must have taken the money and thrown the trousers away."

"Very strange!" says he. "Very strange indeed, but I looked along with a cold gray eye, coughed behind his hand and went out."

"There was something foreboding in his manner. I got instantly into those trousers and I guess I hit the office door by way of the staircase and was out on the street before he could drop down on the elevator. I left the valise. I didn't have any use for it in the hotel, but I managed to sneak away into, anyway."

"I got to Omaha, all right, though somewhat late, and I met a lot of friends I found kind friends. But somehow I've got a hunch that I only missed visiting Guff Nilson by a half a hair's breadth, after all."—Chicago Daily News.

EFFECT OF INSECT NOISES

To Some the Singing Brings Cheer, to Others Melancholy Forebodings.

Some people find a cheerfulness in the melodies of our late summer evenings; to others the very sound of the field singers brings melancholy. Children are peculiarly sensitive to the depressing influence of these eerie voices, says the Philadelphia Ledger. Little Lucile had been allowed to leave home alone for the first time. A month's visit to relatives in the country had been planned, but the morning following her departure had found the child back home. "I couldn't sleep, the bugs bothered so," she sobbed.

In the south the katydid is usually heard about the latter half of August. Six weeks thereafter the simpler folk look for frost, so in yellow fever years the piercing little voice is heard with joy. Apart from this happy association, the vesper note of these tiny singers seems to many people only a mournful prelude to the threnody of summer. The piping of the winter cricket is usually recognized as a sound of cheer, and there is a popular idea that the little fellow brings good luck.

For the bright homeliness of his indoor pictures, as well as through the title of one of his most charming stories, we associate Dickens with the minstrel of the hearth. Milton finds the cricket's note one of mirth, and Leigh Hunt hears only gladness in its song, as well as in that of its "sweet and tiny cousin of the field." Through Hunt's challenge to his friend Keats the grasshopper and the cricket are lifted into the realm of immortal song, since the sonnet written in Hunt's cottage has so much of the haunting magic of that young poet who wrought upon the homeliest groundwork the broodery of richest imagery.

HUNTING ORANG-OUTANG.

Trapping Members of the Monkey Family Easy Compared with Capture of This Rare Species.

Trapping the smaller members of the monkey family is a comparatively easy matter, but the hunter who wishes to secure live specimens of the orang-outang cannot have recourse to the usual methods and has to employ a laborious process.

The process is based upon the fact that the orangs have a liking for certain trees and frequent those to the exclusion of other near-by growths. They seem to regard them as a sanctuary and flee to them in time of danger.

Ascertaining a tree particularly favored, the hunter first drives his quarry to its branches, then while his beaters keep up a din for the purpose of preventing an attempt at escape, the natives are set to work to chop at the trees within a radius of 80 feet all about the simian fortress.

No trunk is cut completely through, but is left with just enough fiber to hold the tree in position. This work is quickly accomplished with the large crops of servants, and at a signal one of the trees is toppled over.

The chopping has been so done that the falling tree carries with it its neighbor and in a twinkling of an eye the trees within a radius of 50 feet from the marked tree lie upon the ground, leaving the orang-outangs with no opportunity for getting away through their leafy avenues of escape.

The remainder of the process simply consists of chopping down the tree of refuge and throwing down the escaping orangs, in which they soon become entangled in their efforts to throw off the encumbrance.

Absolutely Correct.

When the late Cleveland baby was born Mr. Cleveland was asked about the weight, which he gave as 12 pounds. Dr. Bryant, who was present, interrupted the ex-president to say that the nurse had reported the young hopeful to be an eight-pounder. "Well," said Mr. Cleveland, "I know, for I weighed him with the same scales that I use when I go fishing."

Reason for Yelling.

She—Why, those men at the stock exchange run about yelling like a lot of crazy men.

He—Well, I guess you'd yell like a crazy man if you paid $60,000 for a seat and then couldn't sit down.—Yonkers Statesman.
